The 2016 Wellington Tree Climbing Competition

5 March 2016

Remembrance Ridge Wellington Botanic Gardens

The Wellington regional event kicks off at 8am on Saturday 5 March, followed by a whole day of tree climbing, concluding with a prize giving at the end of the day. The top competitors from this event qualify for the national championship in November.

On Sunday 6 March there will be an informal Masters Challenge in the Botanic Gardens, set up by multi-world champ Scotty Forrest and featuring some of the country's best climbers. Watching this will be a great chance to learn about new climbing techniques and gear.

The Wellington Botanic Gardens provides a family oriented setting with some amazing trees. There will also be kids' climbing and a barbecue, providing a good day out for all. The competition is an opportunity for working arborists to network and exchange ideas and safe work practices. The 'New Arborist of the Year' regional competition encourages young arborists in the industry to participate in this event.
